

XM is a superb entertainment and information service that responds to its subscribers and, equally if not more importantly, plays by the rules. Leave XM and its competitor Sirius alone and instead pressure the terrestrial radio broadcasters to improve and enhance their local formats and services.